

5.2 CULTURAL HERITAGE SITE PHOTOS

Photograph 5.2-1: Relic peat cutting beds in the western half of the Site near BP03.

Photograph 5.2-2: Views of the general area of T6 from the northwest.

Photograph 5.2-3: General view towards the area of T5, with the Ben-a-chielt in the centre, and the telecommunications mast left of centre.

Photograph 5-2: The area of T4 facing east. The farmsteads in the middle distance mark the line of the CXXX, with location of T1-T3 beyond the road.

Photograph 5.2-4: General area of T2 looking southeast towards T3.

Photograph 5.2-5: Views of some of the ruins that form the former Golticlay Township complex (MHG13694).

Photograph 5.2-6: Views of the most complete structure that forms part of the former Golticlay Township complex (MHG13694).

Photograph 5.2-7: General views of the area of the head dyke associated with the Golticlay Township complex (MHG20228) and the area of the proposed access track.

Photograph 5.2-8: View of possible structure identified as part of the walkover survey (AECOM005).

Photograph 5.2-9: View towards the area of T1.

Photograph 5.2-10: General views northeast across BP1.

Photograph 5.2-11: General views northeast across BP2.

Photograph 5.2-12: General views west across the area of the main compound and the proposed BESS site, with Morven in the distance.

Photograph 5.2-13: The scheduled Ballachy Broch (SM520), visible as an earthwork in the centre of the image, viewed from the northwest. The Proposed Development is located beyond Stemster Hill which is in the right half of the image.

Photograph 5.2-14: View of south from Ballachy with Stemster Hill on the horizon. The scheduled Ballachy Broch is visible as an earthwork in the centre of the image in front of Stemster Hill (SM520).

Photograph 5.2-15: View of the Achkinloch Stone Setting (SM420) from the interpretation panels at the southeastern end of the monument.

Photograph 5.2-16: View of the Achkinloch Cairn (SM419) with the Achkinloch Stone Setting (SM420) visible in the background.

Photograph 5.2-17: Loch Stemster viewed from the north. Achkinloch cairn (SM419) and stone setting (SM420) are located slightly above the shore of the loch, right of image, but are not noticeable in the landscape.

Photograph 5.2-18: Loch Stemster viewed from the south. The Achkinloch stone setting (SM420) is located on the right side of the road (near the parked car) approximately 190m from the photographer, but is not prominent in the landscape.

Photograph 5.2-19: Views towards Achkinloch cairn (SM419) and stone setting (SM420) from the lower slopes of Stemster Hill approximately 270m southeast of the cairn.

Photograph 5.2-20: View of Loch Rangag and Greysteil Castle Broch (SM555) from the northeast, with the broch located on the small promontory in the loch.

Photograph 5.2-21: View south along the A9, with Loch Rangag and Greysteil Castle Broch (SM555) right of image. The existing OHL as well as other infrastructure including the telecommunications mast on Ben-a-Chielt are visible along the ridgeline left of image.